...And much more

Most Americans believe in the paranormal, and the soul. In a 2005 poll, the Gallup Organization found that 73% of Americans believe in the "paranormal," including clairvoyance, communication with the "dead," and past lives. And according to a 2005 Newsweek poll, 80 - 85% of Americans believe in the soul and it's continued life after death. Your listeners will love Dennis' true stories about the soul and the afterlife.

Dennis meets his son Ryan, 15 years after Ryan died. Dennis will share how he met his son Ryan in a graveyard, 15 years after Ryan had died, and how that experience landed Dennis on a spiritual path, leading him to other mystical experiences—including contact with many other "dead" friends and relatives. Dennis will help your listeners connect with their loved ones on the other side as well.

Help your listeners share their stories. People who might otherwise be afraid to share their "strange experiences" will feel much safer telling their stories during your call-in show because of Dennis' open-hearted discussion of his own mystical events. Dennis will also help interpret your listeners' experiences if they want to share them on the air.

Ancient knowledge can help us now. Dennis will discuss shamanism—the spiritual practice that is older than organized religions by thousands of years—and involves journeying into the Spirit World to get information, solve problems, and heal disease—all of which can help your listeners.

After experiencing what he would later describe as spontaneous mystical events following the death of his infant son, attorney and author Dennis P. McMahon became deeply involved in looking for answers thru shamanism, past-life regressions, and communications with the "dead". Your listeners will benefit from hearing Dennis' real-life stories, and sharing their own experiences on the air.
